The Azure Sun

Homer

4 February 1969

Through imagination and mathematical calculations, correctly or not, you discover nebulas or galaxies, and you even determine the sizes of the stars in them. You are not able to determine your psychic strength yet, or even if you have such a thing, and you go to explore foreign fields, which you ignore completely.

You discover the defects of your fellow man, you even add your own defects to him, and you do not attend to rid yourselves from the web of your own defects.

Why?

Because egoism has conquered you, as entities that are unable to react against your inner enemy.

Unfortunately most of your scientists are lured by their title and that is exactly what degrades them as human beings.

My subject is the azure sun.

What is this sun, which none of your scientists ever imagined?

It is the Father of the solar birth. From this colossal star all the various suns of the Universe came out. It is impossible to describe its size and I am saying that it is a small Universe, so that you understand me.

Its rays are azure and very powerful. The composition of this light is all different from the other suns. I mention it because it is the greatest of the universe, which channels its beneficial powers to the infinite stars of Heaven.

Why is it azure?

Because the combustion of this immense sun consists of gases of various chemical substances, so that its continuous incandescent matter may in the distant future change this sun into a pure expanse of space from every point of view.

Where and when this azure sun will be used, I cannot say. Only Deity has this right, to speak of future events.

The rays of this azure sun reach your Earth, but because your own sun is much closer to you compared to the azure sun, whose rays travel earthly years to caress the safebox of the Heavenly treasure, your Earth, the rays of your sun manage to mediate the energy of the azure rays.

I would like to say many things about this unknown to you sun, because it is everything in the Universe, as the father of all suns, but I am not permitted to transmit to you unknown aspects of the future evolution of all.

The goal of the Spiritual World is for you to learn what is beneficial to you and not to enrich your knowledge without purpose, for the detriment of your entity.

I could write, through this Path, a complete work about the mentioned sun, which your imagination cannot grasp.

Homer

Other beings of the Universe World

Pharah

23 February 1962

And scientists ask: Does a plant have a soul?

To answer to them, I refer to another speech of mine, where I mention what soul is and how does it move the entity. Man, however, has two common things that are interconnected: soul and spirit.

Pharah

The Seven Universes

Confucius

12 August 1964

Maybe some of you have forgotten who I am. At some point I, too, existed as man in this world that you live today. I had occupied myself with many and various works. With the physiognomies of men, which are difficult for someone to discern their depth and most of all I occupied myself with plants. Many of my works have been lost.

The aether is full of invisible forces

Homer

23 March 1969

If the snake on Earth, as a serpent, does not have a spirit, it has a developed instinct and with this it moves on its mother earth. Through its instinct it proves that it has cunning knowledge in its actions. Zoology assigns a little spirit on it. Wrongly! Its spirit was transferred to its instinct and through this it knows all the herbs.

Homer

What is Universe

Orpheus

12 February 1964

Light has spoken. I will also speak for a few, as Science of light. Because there is no Science without light. And if some of your fellowmen have the impression that they are machines and emit light, they only create darkness.

HIPPOCRATES: You also knew about thyme in that period, my dear friend and colleague. If you were drawn to this, it was by your subconscious. It is one of the most important herbs of Nature. It also cures other diseases, which man did not attempt, through this means, to act for the salvation of his brothers.

Orpheus

Circular Comets

Ptolemy the Astronomer

30 April 1976

The Grass is the simplest of all plants. You usually enjoy its beauty in the vast expanses of the valleys.

Ptolemy

The planet Mars

Victor Hugo

I am laughing, my dears, even though Spirits do not laugh. I am laughing at the imbecility of men, who want to reach Mars so soon. They still have not known the mysteries of Earth, and they expedite to other planets, to find what there? Happiness? Since they have abandoned happiness where they could find it, why should they find it on Mars?

They want to know if it is inhabited or not. I will answer to this question. It is inhabited by beings, which you could never imagine. It has a monstrous vegetation. It is impossible for man at the moment to live there. Maybe at some point it will be inhabited by men, but not in your century. The temperature is so different, like water from fire. I am Archon there. Another time I will give you more details.
